Education:

Sept 2017 – Current	Leeds Trinity University Media and cultural studies BA (Hons)
Sept 2015 – July 2017	Notre Dame Catholic College Applied business Double Award (B, B) Media Studies (C)
Sept 2010 – July 2015	6 GCSE's A to C

Skills:

Trustworthy – During my time within employment I have being allowed to handle vast amounts of cash, exchanging money for products such as food, alcohol and other recreational goods. Having always received glowing reports from employers, this anchors my trustworthy nature as I am continuously allowed to handle money.

Reliable - Both within education and employment I consistently attend all lectures or shifts, all my employers have requested me to work shifts to cover others and I continuously pull through helping them during their times of need. This is hugely beneficial within the media industry as I will be both willing and able to fill in, enabling production to commence rather than the business having to delay production due to gaps within the working team.

Flexible - Due to my time management skills I can allocate time to complete all necessary educational work, work within part time employment and run my own media related blog which has accumulated thousands of views and tens of thousands of interactions via social media platforms.

Committed: I have been a freelance writer for over a year now volunteering for a media based company, whilst still creating content for my own blog. I put in the vast amount of effort committing to the media and culture I surrounded myself in as it allowed me to follow my dream as a creative.

Relationship builder - Due to working within three different places of employment and being a freelance creative, I have had to develop my personal skills which allowed me to become a rather successful relationship builder. Making countless friends improving the mood within my various working teams. I believe a happy group of employees is a productive group of employees, so I assure that everyone within my team is content as they are far more likely to provide beneficial and constructive input far more frequently.

Use of Adobe programmes – Both within education and due to personal interest, I have used an array of Adobe programmes such as Photoshop, premiere and audition. I creating promotional images advertising my blogs, short films for college and audio Vox pop's as part of my university curriculum. I also create podcasts and radio shows where I use Adobe audition to record and edit the content to ensure it is ready to publish on my social media platforms.

Work experience:

Trinity Vision: June 2018 – present

University Placement – I partook in a six week programme with a media company called Trinity Vision, which is a media company who create a vast variety of content from animations to culturally aware films addressing current issues. I was able to develop and learn many skills during my time there from lighting scenes, writing scripts using the popular software final draft and research methods to ensure the themes within the short film we are creating are accurate and respectful. After my placement I decided to carry on volunteering with Trinity vision as I became emotionally invested in the production process of the film and wish to see it to the end and develop my skills further.

Nando's: August 2018 – Present

Nandoca – I now work on the grills within Nando's which forced me to learn various skills in a rather short period of time, from cleaning routines to cooking standards temperature laws in regards to storing meat for human consumption. However I also took it upon myself to teach myself how to use the till's as it allows me to help front of house staff during busy periods.

The Horsforth October 2017 – July 2018

Bartender – working within this pub has opened my eyes to countless types of people, I cater my vocabulary and attitude based on each customer I interact with. This is because I understand their specific needs, some desire a chat about their lives and issues, others want fast service and polite interaction. I can establish their needs within seconds, thus making me a productive member of any working environment.

Hemingway's Bar and Kitchen – March 2017 – October 2017

I learnt a rather large list of classical cocktails, this anchors my ability and attitude towards learning new skills. I had no concept of cocktails beforehand, however afterwards I was an exceptional cocktail maker creating my own rendition of cocktails to please specific customers thus meeting their specific needs.

Interests:

Presenting and writing are my most keen interests, I love telling stories always doing so with friends. So, I realised I can paint a picture with my words, I review and discuss music providing my growing audience with a different insight into music providing them with in-depth analysis into projects, singles and events. I also create audio content in the form of a podcast and radio show this increases the size of the audience I receive with my personal content and allows me to establish my own brand as a creator and entertainer.
